

Goat History

Domestic goats were among the first domesticated animals.

About 10,000–11,000 years ago they were kept for milk, meat, clothing and shelter by Neolithic farmers in the Near East

Early explorers kept goats on ships to provide milk and meat on long voyages.

Today they can be found in all climates and regions still providing our basic needs and beyond.