

Ground Cover

Ground cover on the soil surface plays an important role in protecting the soil from erosion, and in maintaining higher infiltration rates. As population increases and more development and urbanization occur, more of the natural landscape is replaced by impervious surfaces, such as roads, houses, parking lots, and buildings that reduce the infiltration of water into the ground and accelerate runoff to ditches and streams.